We have a long relationship working with Holbi now across our group of companies and we've worked together over the years to launch (and relaunch) a number of our company websites. They have always been extremely flexible in accommodating our web project requirements, irrespective of time or budget constraints we've had to work to.

We've found we can always rely on their technical expertise to fulfil very niche or bespoke requirements, we've put some very unique briefs to them in the past and they've always managed to find a solution.
